How to buy a Christmas camera...

Who's it for? A beginner? Someone who already has the "bug" and wants a camera a little more advanced? Or the ace who really knows his stuff . . . and has his sights set high? At your Kodak dealer's, you'll find a model that rates "tops" with any of them. So grab your Christmas list. We're going shopping.

Beginner?

1. Simple little Brownie Cameras . . . Baby Brownie Special and "Targets." Make swell snaps for those whose photography simmers down to "see it . . . shoot it."
2. Brownie Cameras with Flash Equipment . . . Brownie Flash Six-20; Brownie Reflex, Synchro Model. That flash feature permits picture-making indoors or out.

Pretty Well Along?

3. Kodak Folding Cameras . . . Kodak Vigilant Junior, and three more advanced Vigilants with faster, more versatile shutters (some with built-in flash synchronization), keener lenses, adjustable focusing.
4. Kodak Miniatures . . . the Kodak Flash Bantam and the Kodak 35's. Travelers and the more serious fans go for these "little" cameras in a big way.

All-Out Fan?

5. The Kodak Reflex . . . a camera star . . . the pop-up hood, the big, brilliant viewfinder that "previews" pictures full image size . . . a raft of other features. Costs more . . . but it's worth every penny.

And remember... anyone who gets a Kodak or Brownie camera will want to start shooting pronto! So include a roll or two of Kodak Verichrome . . . the film that "gets" the picture. The famous Kodak Film Family includes Kodak Plus-X, Kodak Super-XX . . . full-color Kodachrome and Kodacolor.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
Rochester 4, N. Y.

Note: Prices range from a few dollars for Brownie cameras, to over a hundred for the finer Kodak cameras. But at any price . . . a Kodak-made camera is your money's worth, plus.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC. REQUIRED BY THE ACTS OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, MARCH 3, 1907, AND JULY 3, 1946 OF LEADING COMICS published bi-monthly at New York, N. Y. for October 3, 1947.

State of New York
County of New York

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared J. S. Liebowitz, who, being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Business Manager of the LEADING COMICS and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management and circulation of said publication for the time shown in the above and required by the Acts of August 24, 1912, as amended by the Acts of March 3, 1907, and July 3, 1946, and by the Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the Publisher, National United Publications, Inc., 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.; Editor, F. W. Ellsworth, 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.; Managing Editor, Harry Liebowitz, 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

2. That the owner, if owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders, writing or holding one per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given. National United Publications, Inc., Harry Liebowitz, Editor, 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.; Managing Editor, F. W. Ellsworth, 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.; Business Manager, J. S. Liebowitz, 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

3. Mena as Successor Trustees for Irwin Liebowitz, Jacob S. Liebowitz and Abraham S. Liebowitz as Successor Trustees, for Sonia Liebowitz, all at 380 Lexington Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

3. That the known mortgages, mortgages and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities are none.

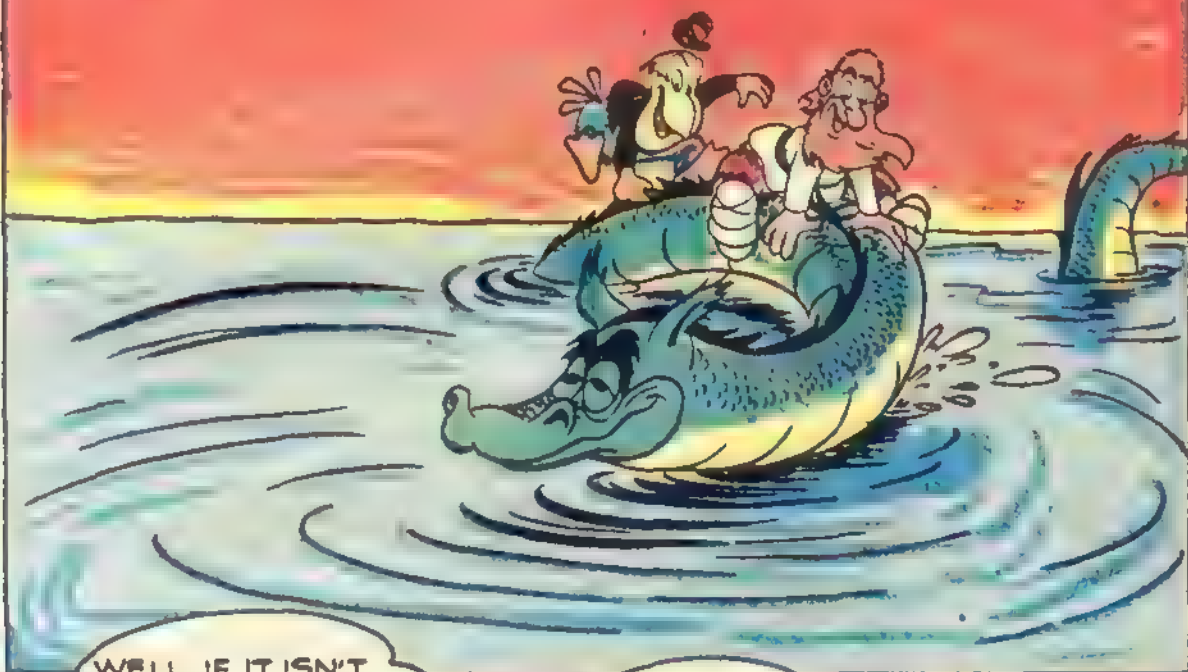

4. That the two paragraphs next above giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other capacity, the name of the person or corporation for whom and in whose name he is acting, is given also, the said two paragraphs contain statements showing whether the said stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as the owner of stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner, and this statement has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest, direct or indirect, in the said stock, bonds or other securities than as so stated by him.

J. S. LIEBOWITZ, Business Manager

Shown to and subscribed before me this 23rd day of September, 1947.

PATRICK PARROT'S UNNATURAL HISTORY

TRANSLATED FROM THE ANIMAL LANGUAGE

WHY THE MONKEY HAS FOUR HANDS

ROBERT RACCOON was very busy and did not notice that several spectators were watching him with interest and amusement. Two minutes before, Robert had caught a little fish and now was engaged in a little chore for which the raccoon family has been famous since the beginning of time. He was washing his food before he ate it.

"Well, well," exclaimed Sammy Squirrel, "isn't he sanitary?"

"I'm sure that fish must be awfully dirty after having spent all its life swimming around in the water," remarked Philo Fox slyly.

Robert, suddenly aware that he had company, looked around quickly, relaxing for a second his hold on his breakfast. The fish squirmed out of his paws and fell back into the stream. But, quick as a flash,

Robert followed it with a furry paw and grabbed it once again.

"Pretty handy too, isn't he?" exclaimed Elmer Elephant "I wish I could do that."

"Oh, a lot of us are pretty handy," said Bartholomew Bear "Look at me, for instance. I'm supposed to be a four-footed creature and yet, more than half the time I'm on my toes reaching for honey or berries or what have you."

"Yes, and how about me?" asked Sammy Squirrel. "Anybody ever see me having lunch but what I'm squatting on my haunches and daintily nibbling away at a nut held by my two hands?"

"Ahem, excuse me," broke in Pat Parrott, "you fellows have four legs or feet or whatever you want to call 'em. But I've only got two and yet I get along all right. I stand on one and hold my food with the other."

"Ha-ha-ha-ha," echoed through the jungle.

Everybody looked up to see where this loud laughter was coming from. High on the branch of a tree they saw Monroe Monkey. Between bites of a luscious banana, he was laughing at the creatures below. They soon saw the reason for his merriment. Perched on a limb with his back against the trunk of the tree, he was sitting pretty in more ways than one. In one hand he was holding a peeled banana from which he had just taken a bite. In another hand he held another banana. And in each of his other two paws he held more bananas—in reserve, as it were. Four bananas—four hands. He certainly had the upper hand on those who looked up at him in wonder and admiration.

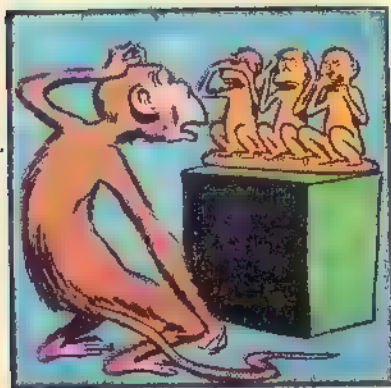

"How'm I doin'?" asked Monroe, with a twinkle in his eye.

"With him it's double—with me it's nothing," said Horace Hippo. "He wins—hands down, as they say."

"Well, it wasn't always that way," remarked Pat Parrot, seeing an opportunity for telling one of his tall tales. "Now, if you ask me—"

"By all means," they chorused. "Tell us, Pat, why it is that the monkey has four hands."

"If you insist," grinned Pat. "It all began 'way back, thousands of years ago, when Monroe's great-great ancestor, Martin, took a notion into his head one day. Of course, Martin and his relatives did not live in tree-tops as they do now. They lived in caves near the cities where mankind dwelled. Martin walked about on four feet then, but when he saw how well the man-people got along on two feet, he decided to 'ape' them, as you might say. And it wasn't long before the whole monkey tribe was walking on two feet.

"Then came the big day when Martin got his idea. He had gone to the man-village to do his shopping (when no one was looking, of course,) and he happened to see something which changed the whole course of his life. A traveler was there from China, showing the people of the village a strange statue that he had brought back with him. Three statues in one, to be more exact. Martin peeked from behind the vegetable stall where he was hiding.

"He saw three little monkeys sitting in a row. One had his hands over his mouth, another had his hands over his eyes, and the third one had one hand over each of his ears. They were, the man said, 'The Three Wise Monkeys'—they hear no evil, see no evil, speak no evil.

"And right then and there, Martin made his great decision. He would be the One Wise Monkey!

"There was a big problem to overcome, Martin knew. So he retired to a cave, far away from his friends, and started to practice.

"For years and years he practiced and finally he succeeded. He became the one wise monkey!

"Then early one fine day, he returned to his home and perched on a high rock where no one could fail to see him.

"His friends came. They saw. They were amazed.

"For Martin had one hand over his mouth, one hand over his eyes, and one hand over each of his ears. He, all by himself, could speak no evil, see no evil, hear no evil.

"Well, to make a long story short, everybody thought it was a swell idea and started to learn to do likewise. And it wasn't long after that when the men-people in the village became jealous. They chased the monkeys out of town (because they had become such expert shoppers, maybe) and the whole monkey tribe took to the tree-tops, where they've been ever since. Fore-handed and four handed, you might say.

Any remarks?" asked Pat, as he finished his tale.

"Ahem," came a voice from above.

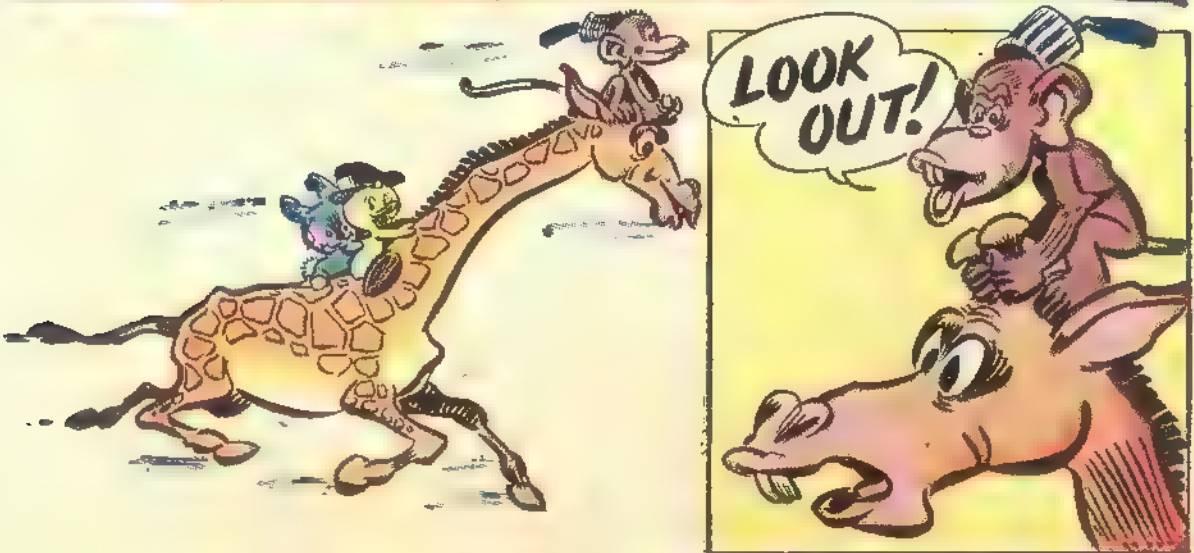

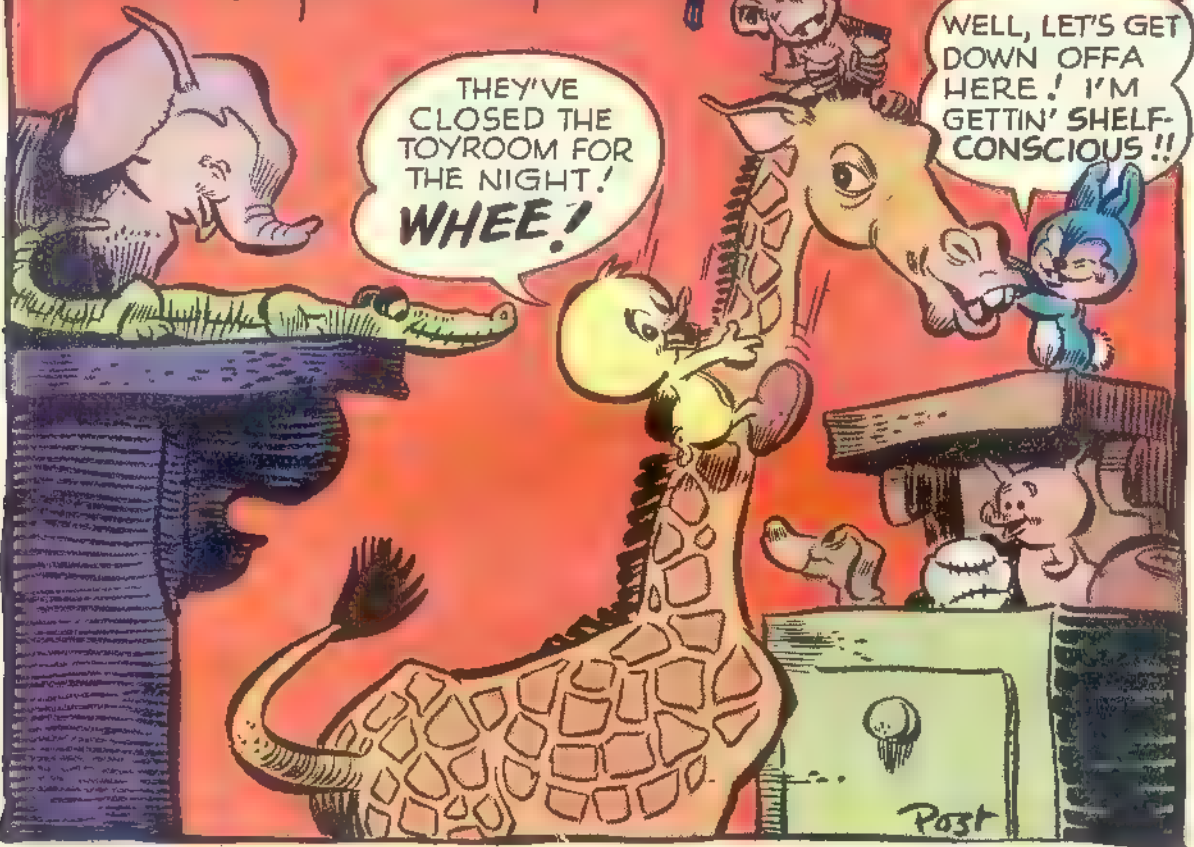

They all looked up. Monroe Monkey had added to his accomplishments. With his curly tail, he was grasping still another banana.

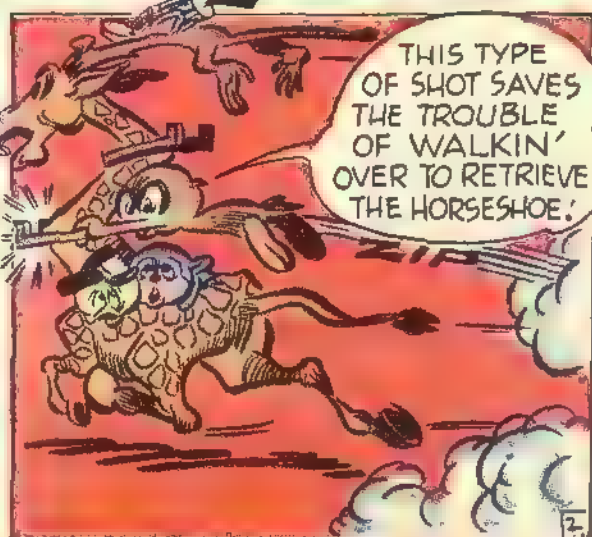

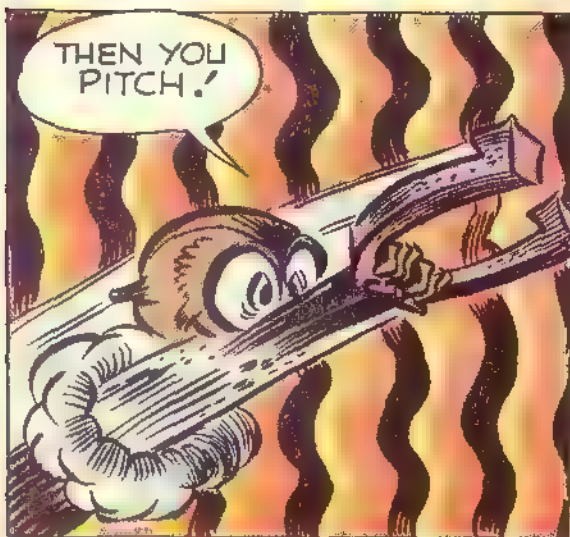

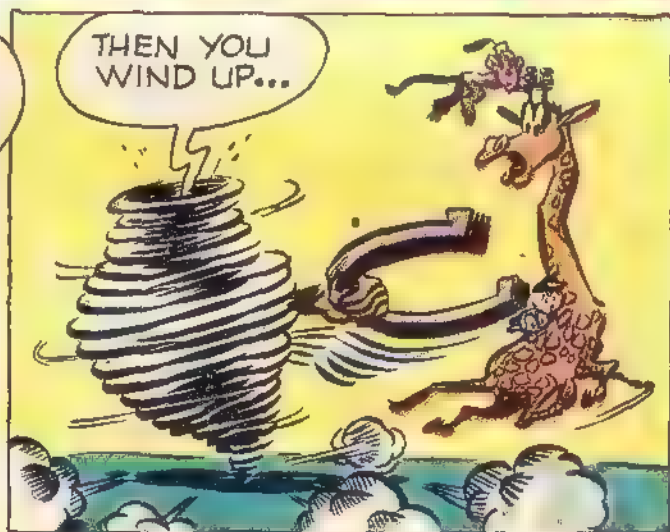

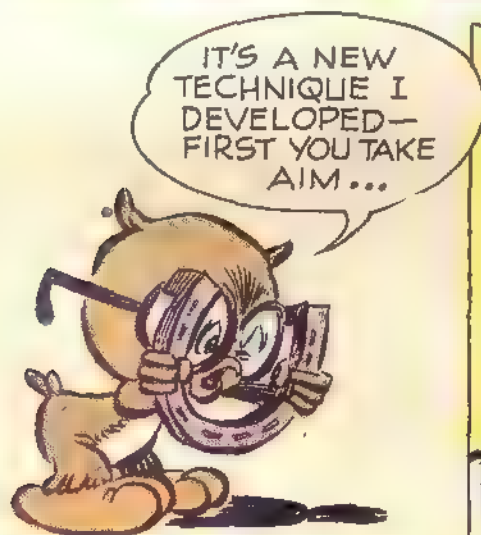

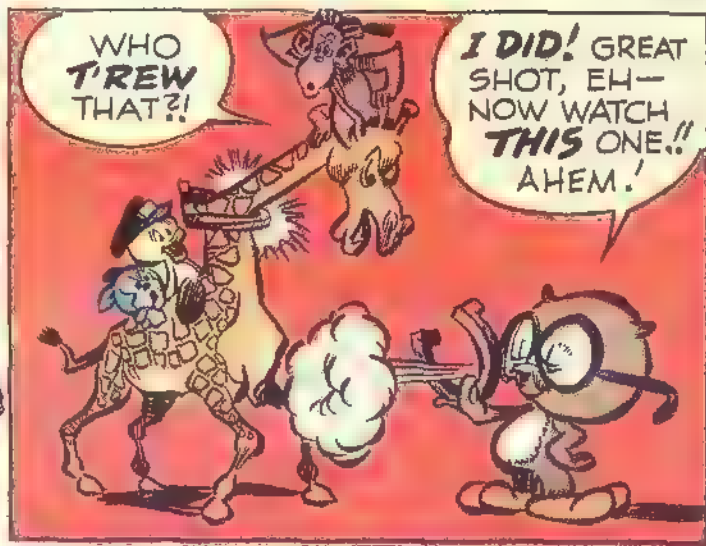

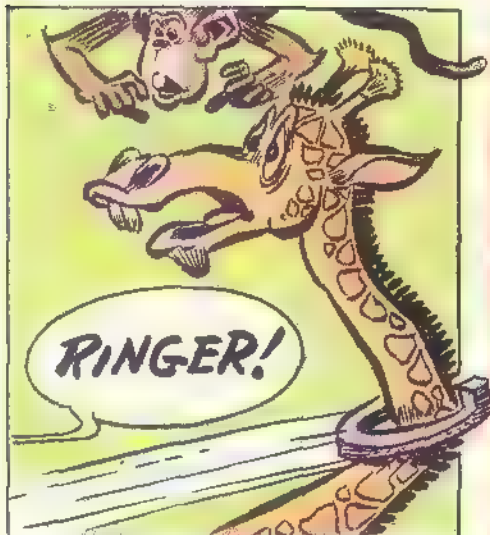

"Well, what do you know?" exclaimed Sammy Squirrel. "Four and a half hands!"

Get off the road quickly! If that can't be done, be sure you're parked on a straightaway. Set a warning light 25 paces behind you so that an onrushing car won't crash into you. And you'll be all the safer if that warning light is a brilliant-beamed, dependable flashlight powered by the new "Eveready" batteries... they outlast all other brands!

Smart motorists always keep two flashlights ready and handy! Prop up the other one for a working light. Remove your spare before jacking up the car. A good idea too, says the American Automobile Association, is to keep all your tire-changing tools tied or packed together so you don't have to search or fumble around for them.

PROOF!...IN THE LABORATORY...IN YOUR OWN FLASHLIGHT...

"EVEREADY" BATTERIES OUTLAST ALL OTHER BRANDS!*

Brighter light, longer life! That's what you want in a flashlight battery. And that's what you get with "Eveready" brand batteries. Laboratory tests prove it. And the best "Laboratory" of all—your own flashlight—proves it!

That's why "Eveready" batteries outsell any other brand—because they outlast any other brand!*

*According to the "General-Purpose 4-Ohm Intermittent Test" of the American Standards Association, which most closely approximates average use.
